Nashua Community Television Introduces Online Streaming All meetings accessible 24/7

Nashua, NH. Mayor Donnalee Lozeau announced an exciting new service for Nashua citizens. Starting Monday, April 25, Nashua Community Television (NashuaCTV) will be streaming all Government TV (Comcast Channel 16) and Educational TV (Comcast Channel 99) broadcasts live on the internet. Nashua citizens and other interested people can now view from any location every program and bulletin board from any computer, network television, smart phone, or other portable network device.

This new service is more than just live streaming television - the NashuaCTV online site will include an archive of all programs that are aired live as of Monday, April 25, 2011 such as meetings, local sports, and public service programs. Mayor Lozeau stated, "This new feature is intended as a more convenient way for Nashua citizens to be better informed."

NashuaCTV's new service can be accessed from the Nashua website at <http://www.nashuanh.gov/ctvstream>. Links to separate pages for GovTV 16, and one for EduTV 99 will be shown. Once a visitor reaches the page they will find a link to start the live stream on the Upcoming Events section of the page. Viewers can conveniently pause and resume the broadcast using the web controls on the video player. Archived programming can be found in the Broadcast Archive section, and just clicking on a program title will begin playing that recorded broadcast.

Nashua GovTV (channel 16) is a source to explore the issues and decisions facing Nashua's leaders and citizens, through live and recorded broadcasts of local government meetings including the Board of Aldermen, Zoning and Planning Boards, and Finance, Budget and other key committees. GovTV also offers many informative Nashua-related public service broadcasts, including programs on Public Health issues, Fire and Building safety, Going Green, and Community Spotlight. EduTV (channel 99) is the home of Nashua's award-winning scholastic sports coverage, student shows, concerts, and presentations. EduTV also hosts a full schedule special programming for children, seniors, and others, and gavel-to-gavel coverage of Board of Education meetings.
